

Shure the death of this bird may not have occurred had his coat been a beautiful green

But he being yellow, this unfortunate fellow, his early demise was foreseen.

This bird in the van with a lone Irishman may have raised his ancestral rage;

But I cannot conceive, or hardly believe,
he murdered him foul in his cage!

And so in conclusion, let there be no delusion I did this poor bird slaughter.

I beg to advise
'tis safe to surmise
he died from want of fresh air and water.

Should my reply seem confusing when it you're perusing, do not think me evasive or hard.

You have the sympathy, if of much use that may be,
of P.J. Foley-the Guard.
